GEORGE O. BARNES
GOD IS LOVE And NOTHING ELSE

PRAISE THE LORD.

Kosciusko, Miss., Feb. 22, 1887.

DEAR INTERIOR:—We left "N'awlins"—as the natives recklessly pronounce the name of the fair metropolis of the South—on the same principle, I suppose, that my own people call their chief city "Loosul," on the evening of Monday, the 14th, at dusk. We returned by the road we came, the Illinois Central, and reached McComb about 10 o'clock, in a drenching rain. Raining is reduced to a science in Mississippi, as I have intimated before; and Drucker's new trunks were tested as to their water-proof capacity, as the luckless heap of them stood on the truck, with the skies pouring bucketful upon their devoted sides, tops, bottoms, while the gentle officials, whose duty it is to handle railroad baggage, hovering around in indigo rubber impenetrables, placed them in suitable positions to be searched by the descending showers. A "baggage-smasher" is, ex officio, something terrible, when he comes in contact with the appropriate prey. He earns his salary by persistently doing something "agin" our portable property. He would be an "unfaithful servant" if he failed in inflicting some kind of damage in transit upon the packages committed to his tender care. The age waits for some insane person of large property, who, wholly regardless of self, will spend a vast fortune in hiring detectives; waylaying baggage-smashers; prosecuting bloated corporations, right and left; lobbying in legislatures; with one solitary object in view—the protection of travellor's luggage, intrusted to public carriers. Some Bergh or Captain Comstock to give him time, talents and money to effect a reform, and win the gratitude of the traveling world. I fear the millenium will dawn before this disinterested lunatic makes his entry, mounted on this particular hobby.

Hark! I hear a tremendous crash, resounding over the impatient hiss of the iron horse, champing his bit and pawing to be off, so to speak. The ill-balanced load, upon the truck, resents the attempt to drag the heavy-laden vehicle over the side track and down go three of Drucker's new beauties—keroshish—is a puddle of mud and water. The downpouring rain is not enough. Let Drucker be tried by another test, to find whether he has put up a good job. Slowing out bedraggled baggage is lifted from its cosy bed, dripping, sorrowfully with streams of yellow tears, and once more perched atop of the others, is at last dragged under cover. Our party stand under a shed, on what was dry ground when they went in; but as they stand, two streams of the general overflow go right and left of them, converting their condition into that of forlorn castaways on a desert island. Wife and I had gone into the station room for a seat. Not hearing of the others for awhile, I go out and find them—as described above. I hail them, as persons in distress, and after a little chafing, proposing to send a boat over, etc., they come splashing through the muddy slush; and when a let-up in the down-pouring rain gives promise of a brief respite, we scuttle for "home" as fast as we can struggle, through the one-lantern-illuminated darkness. Hug, dear boy, met us at the station. Cousin Heber and Mary came up with us from the city. The latter spent the week with us there, and Heber came and went, as he could. Hugh ran down once, but he had to hold the fort at home most of the time and glad we were to see the dear fellow again, most lovable of Hugh, as he is.

We gave one service to the dear McComb people Tuesday night. The sky frowned blackness and everything threatened, but at the vigorous bell-peal they streamed out from every quarter and filled up the little church once more. Who couldn't preach with such a congregation, mighty to hear some more of such a gospel? The good LORD gave me just the right message. I can't tell you how dear these noble "Bereans" of McComb City are to us all. God bless them!

Wednesday we left our cousins' hospitable roof; how reluctantly we none of us knew, till called to say "good-bye!" Oh, dear! it was a wrench, to tear ourselves away.

Again on the Central, in an express train, steaming away northward for our new destination. Going to New Orleans we had the light of a full moon making glorious shadows through the forest of long leaved pine. Speeding north, the same charming ride through seemingly boundless vistas of the pines resinosa, under a cloudless sky, and the slanting rays of a setting sun, I can hardly say which was the more charming.

Going down Marie, Heber and I "took a bump" with the engineer upon his locomotive for about 20 miles. It was almost terrible to a novice, who had never been there before. I can't describe the mingled exhilaration and fear that come like a shower bath upon one's nerves, in mounting such a fiery steed. My respect for an engineer grew spare during that furious ride. Heroes, every one, are these engine drivers, though common enough in this rail-intersected land. No money would tempt me to undertake a task so full of death-risk. Whoever escapes, he goes under; when his engine runs like a war horse in a collision, or goes over and over when it flies the track. In rare cases a lucky jump may save life, but in most accounts we read, "the engineer and fireman were both killed." Yet they seem to enjoy their perilous posts, and the familiar and knowing touch they give the throttle valve lever, and air-brake is good to look at. Like the exquisite manipulation of a skillful rider "feeling" his horse's mouth with curb and rein, and knowing exactly what to do. It takes long practice to perfect both. And there must be a sort of gift about it, as in all else; for there are engineers and engineers; as riders and riders. Our engineer, one of the best on the road, I was told, treated us most courteously, rubbing carefully with a handful of "waste" the seat where Marie was placed, lest the ubiquitous grease of her oleaginous surroundings should soil her dress; and doing the other honors of his limited realm with kindly grace. Then the bell tapped and away we "went with a shriek and roar and a rattle," as Dickens says. I remember, distinctly, I was glad to get off the engine, when we halted long enough to make the transfer and have no desire to repeat the experience. But whenever I hear of a strike for better wages, I heartily wish they may carry their point.

Kosciusko has about 1,500 inhabitants; prettily situated on a lot of hillocks, in the pine woods. Still in reach of pine-knot, which to me of late is the embodiment of cheery comfort and hearty welcome. Our dear friend Sister, Rose Richards, sees to it that our mails follow us promptly, having taken the troupe under her especial care in this line. What a treasure she is to her wandering charges and what a lot of trouble she gladly takes to keep us happy! God bless her! Ever in Jesus,

GEO. O. BARNES.

SOMERSET ITEMS.—Hiram S. Goch, of Lincoln county, and Miss Nannie Grubbs were married at the residence of Andrew Grubbs.—During the pastorate of Rev. Joe R. James of 15 months here and at Burnside, there have been added to his church by letter, relation and baptism, 150, and a church debt of $360 has been liquidated.—Bob Murphy sold to Abe Wolf 17 head of cattle at $37 per head, and 37 head of hogs at $4.60 per head.—A number of our enterprising citizens have associated themselves together to form a joint stock company for the purpose of establishing a factory at this place. So far the subscriptions have reached $2,200 and an iron foundry has been suggested, though a factory of wooden articles may yet be adopted as more feasible and more profitable. [Re porter.]

Beecher, who judging from his past can extract about as much consolation out of it as anybody, said in his sermon last Sunday: "If a man believes in the old idea of hell-to-day he is a candidate for a lunatic asylum. He has got to give up his Christ or his hell. Men are rescued and saved by the voluntary suffering of love, and the idea is inconsistent with the old idea of a God of vengeance. The revised bible has left hell pretty much out, and has put in sheep and hares. This does not put out the idea of future punishment—I believe in that—but the old machinery and methods of punishment are given up."

Young Mr. Fair, son of Senator Fair, of Nevada, can boast of the most expensive drunk on record when he tried to shoot Representative Page, of California, because the latter refused to take a drink with him. Young Fair had been promised a cool $1,000,000 if he would go for a year without drinking, and had scored up seven months of the allotted time, but the temptation to go on a tear that would cost a round million was too glittering for his little mind, and he fell.

Lady—"You have houses for rent?" Real estate agent—"Yes; here is one list of about 150." Lady—"Do you think you can give me one that will suit me?" Real estate agent—"Madam, I don't believe I can, but possibly I can give you one that will suit your husband!"—[Pittsburg Dispatch.]

The Pacific Ocean contains 80,000,000 square miles, which is twice the size of the Atlantic, four times the size of the Indian, eight times the size of the Southern and 16 times the size of the Arctic. These five bodies of water contain 155,000,000 square miles of water.

The use of the gall of rattlesnakes is again warmly urged by M. Kosicky, of Austria, as an antidote for snake bite. He asserts that cows and dogs in the last stage of the poison recover immediately on the remedy being administered.

"If misfortune overtakes you, smile," advises a poet. That's all well enough, but suppose misfortune overtakes you in a strictly prohibition town?—[Burlington Free Press.]

GARRARD COUNTY DEPARTMENT.

Lancaster.

—Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner is in town this morning.

—Rev. W. O. Goodloe, formerly of this place, now of Mt. Sterling, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

—It is Lawyer Louis Landram now, if you please. The young man went to Danville Thursday to be examined and returned with the necessary "papers" that evening.

—At the solicitation of friends Mr. R. H. Tomlinson has concluded to withdraw from the race for representative. Mr. Tomlinson had quite a strong following, but thinks he is doing the best for his party by his withdrawal.

—Mr. Alex Doty met with quite a painful accident a few days ago. While in the loft of his stable shoveling some corn, he lost his balance and fell a distance of several feet, spraining his arm and bruising him up considerably.

—Col. D. R. Callier has gone to Chattanooga on a visit to relatives. Misses Lizzie Sweeney and Lula Chaisne went to Louisville Monday to remain several weeks. Col. B. M. Burdett and wife leave on Tuesday morning for a stay of several months at Killenray, Florida.

—At the sale of the property of the late Jones L. Adams last Thursday the home tract of land, containing 510 acres, was sold to George Higginbotham at $50 per acre, realizing $25,500. The personal property brought something over $2,500. One jack sold for $705; a buggy mare for $145 and other stock in proportion.

—James Rose was jailed here last week, charged with having committed a rape on the person of Mahala Burnside, a respectable colored woman, who lives near Bryantville. The woman claims that Rose met her in the road and drawing his pistol compelled her to comply with his demands.

Rose is about 25 years of age and bears a bad reputation. He will have his examining trial on Wednesday, before Judge Walker.

HUSTONVILLE, LINCOLN COUNTY.

—George M. Givens has returned again from Atlanta. He sold his stock, but re-ports a dull market.

—We had on Saturday about the heaviest rainfall of the season. The blizzard struck us in the afternoon and put in good time during the night and through Sunday.

—The waters have prevailed to such an extent for several days as to prevent most people from coming to town. Hence no great amount of business is being transacted.

—G. W. Ryan's case has developed as typhoid fever. His sister and sister-in-law reached this place from West Virginia on Saturday. Abner Chensult died this morning.

—We have a pretty general clamor for a war with Great Britain. This probably grows to some extent out of the fact that the dividends from the pension bureau give evidence that military service is a good investment.

—In obedience to a joint resolution adopted by the general assembly, Governor Knott has issued his proclamation naming Saturday, April 2, as "Arbor Day," when it is hoped everybody will plant him a little tree, either ornamental or useful.

—A movement is on foot in Christian county to build a number of turnpikes and a fund of $80,000 has been raised for that purpose. John C. Latham, Jr., the wealthy young banker of New York, a native of Christian county, leads off with a subscription of $50,000.

—Down in East Tennessee a man named Newman was engaged to move a widow and her family, and while doing so and while a young daughter of the woman was with him on the wagon seat a fiend sprang from the road-side and fired two shots from his gun, killing Newman and the girl instantly. Eppes, the fellow who did the deed, then fled and 100 men started in pursuit, resolved to burn him alive when caught.

—An elderly widower, who lived near Memphis, took advantage of a 17-year-old girl and under threats of death prevented her telling her parents. Finding herself entangled and knowing that further concealment was out of the question, she went to the man and without the least warning fired five shots into his body, three after he had fallen, killing him instantly. She was lodged in jail, but will be acquitted, as she should be.

—At Columbia, S. C., five itinerant holiness evangelists from the North, three men and two women, who fraternized with negroes and gave offense by denouncing the Catholics as well as all clergymen and by slandering ladies of Columbia, were taken by a mob of about 100 students from their lodging house, dragged with a rope around the streets for two hours in the rain, until the women were exhausted, being subjected at the same time to cries of "lynch them," and being pelted with all sorts of missiles. They were then put on a train and sent North without being permitted to get their clothing or effects from their lodging house.

W. P. WALTON.

THE country can breathe freer. That abominable steal, the pauper pension bill, is dead in the House of its friends, though it was not killed by that overwhelming majority that it should have been. In fact the majority, made up of republicans and 38 renegade democrats, was in its favor, but fortunately for the country it takes a two-thirds majority to override the objections of the executive to a bill. The vote stood 175 against to 125 for sustaining the veto. Randall and that other old fraud, who has made some reputation as an object to small appropriations, Holman, of Indiana, voted with the majority to rob the South, for the millions would come principally from her, as what she contributes does not return to her as in the North. Gen. Bragg, of Wisconsin, made a spirited argument against the bill and endeared himself to the whole country by his efforts to stem the proposed unparalleled raid. On the original passage of the bill the Senate was practically unanimous for it and the House voted 180 to 76 in its favor. In the face of such a majority it took no ordinary man to rise to the importance of the occasion and say "No such bill shall become a law with my consent," but Mr. Cleveland is no ordinary man. He is every inch as brave and as bold as Andrew Jackson was and the country owes him a debt of gratitude which it can only repay by a unanimous renomination for president and a practically unanimous re-election.

WHILE in Virginia recently our route lay through Hagerstown, and near the old homeestead where the first fifteen years of our happy childhood were passed. Passing the court-house we observed many old friends of former days getting on the train and after a hearty shake and joyful salutation with each, we asked the occasion of their assembling. It was court-day and most of the men had been down to serve on the grand jury. The service had required in all less than half a day and we learned that but one case was brought before it, that of a negro charged with breaking into a smoke-house, but not enough evidence was presented to warrant the finding of an indictment. No murder has occurred there for years and the criminal court meets and adjourns frequently without a case. That's the kind of a country we came from, gentlemen, and very fully accounts for the fact that we are "as mild a mannered man as ever cut a throat or scuttled a ship."

SPEAKING of Senator Harris' two republican votes and Buckner's failure to vote Harrodsburg Democrat says: "Gen. Buckner did not vote at all for 15 years or more, Buckner's friends claim that during part of this time he was disfranchised by the Federal government and another part he was living in Louisville. But there were several years at least, during which he lived at his Hart county home and refused to cast a vote and lend his support to struggling democracy, and it has not been claimed that the record exists of his ever having deposited a ballot for the party of his choice while living in Louisville. Indeed Senator Harris accused him of having voted but three times since the war. As between the two men on the record business, we think Senator Harris has decidedly the best of the argument."

THE Glasgow News is not given to mincing words as the following paragraph will show: "Gen. Wolford was one of the two Kentucky democratic Congressmen who voted for that beautiful mosaic of legislation, the Pension-bill. There is an impression about that Gen. Wolford doesn't care a continental whether or not he represents the wishes of his long suffering constituency, and this vote certainly looks like it. Under no circumstances will Colonel Wolford ever again receive the political support of Barren county." And the same may be said of Lincoln if we read the signs aright.

LATER reports from the great earthquake in Italy show that over 2,000 people perished by the calamity and millions of property were destroyed. Hoping to find safety at least to life, if needs be in a good place, 300 people in Bajardo took refuge in a church, but a subsequent shock demolished the building and all perished. The scenes of confusion and death, graphically described in the cable dispatches, are enough to curdle one's blood, even though it has just contemplated the Charleston horror, as terrible as it was.

A. R. DYCHE, of the London Echo will ship the Leader plant, which he has just purchased, to Barbourville, where he will begin the publication of the News, March 11. He states that one of the best writers in the State has been employed to do the editorial work on it and as a consequence will constantly bristle with the latest and best news.

THOSE who care to see the Van Zandt woman, who has been making herself such a fool after the condemned anarchist, Spies, can do so in perfect wax representations, which will now be exhibited at the leading museums. Nina raised a row with the first concern that attempted it and sued out an injunction, but the courts have just dissolved it.

THE Kansas republicans are eternally down on St. John, the prohibition apostle and showed it the other day by the legislature changing the name of a county that was once proud to be called after him.

GEN. BRAGG, may his tribe increase, implored Congress not to yield to the demands of "deserters, coffee coolers and bounty jumpers," and bankrupt the treasury and country by passing the pauper pension bill. The general was in 50 battles in defense of the Union and speaks as a true soldier. Said he: "It is only the class of gentlemen who hang around the Grand Army Posts, who crowd themselves in to get $5 a week and live upon their comrades, who are making this grand hue and cry. The soldier prefers to stand by his record, and asks not that Congress shall mark him as a beggar. He wants it understood that he is in private life, as he was in the army, a soldier fighting for the maintenance of the Union, loving his country and not asking to be supported by it. Why, look at the effect! The Confederate soldiers, without home, are toiling, day by day, and exhibiting a thirst, industry and energy never expected of them, while the Northern man, the independent, the self-reliant, the industrious, the energetic and the enterprising, lags behind into idleness. Why? Because he is waiting for his stipend to come from the Government, and when that stipend comes it is spent quickly, and if he comes from a poor-house, he lapses back into the position and waits for another stipend."

THE statement has been going the rounds that Dr. Standiford had promised that if he is chosen U. S. Senator he will proceed to have developed the mineral and other resources of the State, have railroads built, &c. We were at a loss to know how a Senator could fulfill such promises, until reading his admirable letter in which he says: "I have sold many bonds to Eastern capitalists, and all the bonds I ever sold or recommended are worth a premium to day. I believe if the people of Kentucky would honor me with the position of Senator it would greatly strengthen me with Eastern capitalists, and by personal representations and proof of the immense value of hidden wealth of the State, as well as demonstrating to them the profitable returns which they would receive from their investments, I would then fully be enabled to bring capital into the State." The doctor is an excellent man and it may pay our people to consider well his claims and fitness to succeed Senator Beck.

THE kindly mention made of us by numerous Kentucky papers in connection with a recent visit to Washington, places us under additional obligations to do the same. But for our innate modesty and a knowledge that the dear fellows are, in this instance at least, swayed by a too great kindness of heart, we would reproduce their articles so that others who do not read their papers might see how well we are thought of where we are least known. We can never forget the tokens of appreciation tendered by Brethren Woods, of the Frankfort Capital, Richardson, of the Glasgow News, Keller, of the Carlisle Mercury, Bosley, of the Winchester Sun, Lisle, of the Winchester Democrat, Green and Tipton, of the Richmond Register, and a whole lot of others.

AFTER frittering away three months of good time, the West Virginia legislature adjourned without electing a successor to Senator Camden. The final vote stood Camden 39; Goff 31 and the rest scattering. The democrats had it in their power to elect, but were too jacksonian to do so. The governor will appoint a Senator till the meeting of the next legislature, and as he is a democrat we may expect a democrat appointment. Camden's connection with the Standard Oil Company killed his prospects for re-election.

GEN. WOLFORD, who has been honored by the democracy to say the least, to his full deserts, can now retire to the shades of private life without one regret from the masses, who think that the pension business has already run riot enough, without having that gigantic fraud, the pauper pension bill, inflicted upon us. He and bischirakis Taubee voted to pass it over the president's veto, and went to make up the six alleged democrats from the South who did.

OR the six democratic candidates who wish to serve the dear people as lieutenant governor, Senator Sam E. Hill, of Hartford, seems to have the bulge at present.

He is very favorably spoken of by all who know him as a man of ability, integrity and worth and one who has done his duty both in war and peace. He was a gallant Federal soldier and rose from a private to a captaincy and since the war has filled the full measure of good citizenship.

THE leaders of the republican party are much disgusted at the way Billy Bradley has stocked the cards on them and are kicking vigorously against the counties sending instructed delegates. In the meantime Billy's friends go on securing county after county for him, till now the question of his nomination is no longer debatable. But a nice little storm is gathering in the party, if signs go for anything.

GEN. FITZGERALD LEE, governor of Virginia, whom the people of that State fairly idolize, is said to have the vice-presidential bee buzzing in his bonnet, and that his recent visit in the Northwest was for the purpose of mending his fences. Cleveland and Lee would make a splendid ticket and one that would sweep the country like a cyclone.

IT is stated that Frank Siddall, the man who made his fortune out of soap, has increased his offer for Maud S. to $125,000. In all of Siddall's extensive advertising the words "Don't be a clam" appear, but for once we had rather be a clam than to offer that much for a horse that is liable to lie down and die with the colic or botts anytime.

THE republicans of the Senate chose the fiery grasshopper from Kansas, Ingalls, as Speaker of the body to succeed John Sherman, resigned. The democrats nominated Senator Harris, of Tennessee, but unfortunately lacked a vote or two of electing him.

THERE are only 14 banks in the whole State of Arkansas, which has 77 counties. Men with more money than they know what to do with might investigate with a view of setting up a few. Kansas has a bank for each of its 87 counties.

YESTERDAY'S Courier-Journal contained less than a dozen lines of editorial. We suppose Mr. Watterson has gotten tired of criticizing the administration and is collecting his thoughts for another meteoric display of some kind.

Call for Committee Meeting.

The members of the Democratic County Committee are requested to meet in the office of the INTERIOR JOURNAL at 1 o'clock next Monday, March 7th, to consider important matters. A full meeting is earnestly desired.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

—The governor of West Virginia will reconvene the legislature March 4th.

—The President has declared that there is no need of a special session of the Senate.

—Snow at St. Johnsbury, Vt., has blocked the railroads and in some places is five feet deep.

—James Chrisman, of Wayne, is said to have cleared a cool $100,000 in a real estate transaction in Iowa.

—The county levy of Montgomery has been fixed at 40 cents on the $100; railroad tax 37 cents and poll $3.

—Stonewall Jackson was convicted in the U. S. Court at Louisville for selling whisky without license and given a term in jail.

—A U. S. Judge at New York holds that the Knights of Labor are actionable for damages when they order and enforce a boycott.

—Bradley claims that 37 counties have instructed their delegates to vote for him for Governor in the Republican State Convention.

—It is announced that a vein of iron ore, sixteen feet thick and yielding 62 per cent of metal, has been struck at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

—Gov. McCreary was in the Speaker's chair Friday when the House went into a Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill.

—Six boys, whose ages ranged from 12 to 15 years, were run down and killed by a passenger train on the Lehigh Valley road, near Easton, Pa.

—Tom Carroll and Dennis McCarthy, section hands on the Cincinnati Southern, were run over and killed by an express train near Ludlow.

—Mrs. Cart and her two children, residing at Holbrook, Arizona, while driving in the country, were overtaken by a blizzard and frozen to death.

—The President has signed the bill appropriating $147,000 as indemnity for loss suffered by Chinese subjects at Rock Springs, Wyo., during the riots.

—An electric headlight, in use on the Lake Shore road, is said to be so brilliant that a newspaper can be read in its rays a distance of two miles.

—Two freight trains collided near Creston, Iowa. Frank McKay was killed and Elmer Bright and John Martin were seriously injured and 50 cars were demolished.

—George Peel was convicted of involuntary manslaughter at Nicholasville and given three years. He belongs to a fine family and has always borne a good reputation.

—The Texas Senate, by a vote of 21 to 8, passed a prohibitory amendment to the constitution, which will be submitted to the people on the first Thursday in August next.

—Mrs. Logan has selected the center of the circle at the north end of South Park, Chicago, for a burial place for herself and Gen. Logan, and a site for the monument to Gen. Logan.

—The Collector of Customs at New York reports the receipt of $10,250,000 customs dues from Feb. 1 to 21, inclusive. The receipts for six months, closing March 1, exceed $70,000,000.

—Down in Ballard county last week three women increased and multiplied and a fair count shows eight babies between them. Two had triplets and the other twin, and all are living.

—Louisville is the healthiest of the 16 larger cities of the Union. Its death rate last year was only 15 to the 1,000, while in New Orleans it was 23, Cincinnati 23, Chicago 19, and so on.

—Speaker Carlisle is reported as saying that the Treasury needs more fortifications than anything else in this country; a remark that adds another proof that he is possessed of old horse sense.

—To-day makes the total count of clouded days, since the beginning of the year, thirty-two. The rainfall during this period has equalled that of the last six months of 1886. —[Louisville post of 26th.]

—The Ohio is 54 feet and rising at Cincinnati. The Mississippi is also on a tear, being within a few inches of the very high mark, and dwellers along its course are frightened at its probable consequences.

—Private Watchman Hukill shot a negro named Dan Taylor severely, at Lexington, and was himself shot at three times without effect.

—Miss Annie Curtis, of Kensee, had the measles and a cold water bath was administered as a remedy. It threw her into convulsions and she died in a short time.

—A young woman of Norfolk, Va., who was blind from cataract, took the advice of an old negro woman, put a drop of molasses in each eye every day, and was completely cured. See a local paper.

—The wind storm which raged furiously here Sunday, did much damage in various parts of the State. Two steamboats were sunk at Louisville, 146 feet of the Exposition building was blown down and many other lesser damage occurred.

—The bill to establish experimental stations at the agricultural colleges in the different States has passed the House under suspension of the rules. It has already passed the Senate. This is worth $15,000 per annum to the State College or University at Lexington.

—When Robertson attempted to take the Speaker's chair in the Indiana Senate there was a knock down and drag out performance, in which he went out in a double quick from the force of the doorkeeper's hands, which held him by the seat of his pants. Smith still presides over the body.

—The Legislature of Tennessee has passed a bill granting a pension to all Confederate soldiers of that State who lost both arms or legs in actual service. An amendment was adopted including the State's Federal soldiers who have suffered like losses and who are not pensioned by the general government.

—A Pulaski county desperado named Bill Parsons, who boasted that he had killed six men in his time, died himself with his boots on Friday. In a row with Owen Mullany, another bad man, at Greenwood he was shot to death, after he had gotten in several harmless shots at his antagonist.

—The House recently declared that a vacancy existed in a contested election case from the 21 Rhode Island district and C. H. Paige, a democrat, was elected. He took his seat Friday, amid the applause of the democratic members. Mr. Paige will be a Congressman for ten days and is the first democrat from Rhode Island who has held a seat in that body for 34 years.

—The Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid Society has disapproved the action of the Chattanooga University in excluding colored students, and has requested the faculty to rescind its orders by which they are excluded. Prof. Calkins, of the university, who refused to accept the professorial hand of a colored minister, has been requested to resign.

—Young English, a son of the vice presidential candidate with Hancock, was arrested just as he was going aboard a steamer at New York for Europe, on a charge by a widow named Case, formerly of Indianapolis, who says the young man seduced her under promise of marriage and afterwards procured an abortion on her. All of which should be a warning to young and old to "Beware of vidders."

—The Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid Society has disapproved the action of the Chattanooga University in excluding colored students, and has requested the faculty to rescind its orders by which they are excluded. Prof. Calkins, of the university, who refused to accept the professorial hand of a colored minister, has been requested to resign.

—Mrs. Hawkins, of Frankfort, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Green Clay Smith, at the Clemens House, and other friends.

—The Danville Literary Club was entertained Friday night by Mr. J. A. Quisenberry, when "The Interstate Commerce Bill" was discussed.

—Gen. Cassius M. Clay, republican candidate for Governor, spoke at the courthouse Friday evening. He made a good speech from his standpoint, his criticisms of the Hewitt Revenue bill being pungent and amusing.

—A euchre party given by Miss Emma W. Weisegar, Friday night, was attended by Misses Mary B. Fisher, Effie Cooper, Bettie Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Cecil, Messrs. C. R. Anderson, B. F. Phillips, W. B. Thomas and D. T. Fackler.

—The Junction City Herald, published at Somerset, has changed its name to the Prohibition Herald and while it is also published at Somerset tries to make the unsophisticated think it is "borned" every week at Junction City. From a casual glance at the last number your young man concludes that Brer Hansford imagines that he is doing something toward the squelching of the "drink fiend," whoever that is.

—The Grand Jury on Friday returned an indictment against Charles Henderson and a confederate named Beauregard for conspiracy and robbing. It is charged that the defendants on the 20th day of September, 1884, did feloniously combine, confederate and conspire together to rob and did rob Dr. J. B. Burk, of Boyle county, of the sum of $6,640. The trial has been set for March 14th prox., with bond for $4,000 each. Beauregard has never been arrested.

—The trial of the negroes, David and Alfred Graham and Mark Crittenton, for killing Frank Burns, is to take place Friday. Judge Morrow appointed Messrs. C. H. Rodes and J. W. Yerker to defend the accused men.

RELIGIOUS.

—Brother Barnes writes to Miss Rose Richards to forward his mail till further orders to Honna, Terre Bonne Parish, Louisiana.

—Rev. H. Allen Tupper has been selected to deliver the American Baptist Publication Society address at the anniversary in Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.

—Moody and Sankey, the Evangelists are to have built for them in Chicago by wealthy residents, a building costing $250,000, in which they will wrestle with the wickedness infesting that city and conduct a school for the training of Christian workers.

THE magistrates meet with the county court next Monday to lay the county levy, which will likely be fixed at the present rate, 20 cents on the $100.

A HORSE hitched to a buggy belonging to a colored man, got scared at the train Sunday and dashed down Lancaster street, overturning the vehicle and breaking it in hundred pieces.

THE young people enjoyed a candy pulling at Mr. J. W. Rout's Friday night, given in honor of Jack's debut into society. The young man is now at liberty to spark any girl he chooses.

J. S. BETTS, who is charged with robbing the mails at Richmond, says that he has made no confession. On the contrary, he stoutly affirms his innocence.—[Courier Journal.] For his family's sake we sincerely hope he will be able to establish it. He has been indicted by the U. S. grand jury.

MARSHAL NEWLAND says the occupation of the night marauders is almost entirely gone since the barrooms closed. He has not been compelled to make an arrest for several weeks and says that a drunken man is now rarely here, although he knows of 36 bottles of whisky that came up from Rowland on a certain night.

CAPT. DELPH's freight train jumped the track near Hazel Patch, Saturday night, but no damage resulted save the breaking of several trucks. In assisting in getting the cars in shape, Section Master Consilie was struck on the head by a chain which broke and rebounded hurting him considerably. The express was delayed four or five hours by the accident.

THE house and contents of Ernest Woods near Paint Lick burned Sunday, Loss $2,000; no insurance.

DR. ALCORN in his letter to the Advocate mentions Mr. M. G. Thompson as a possible candidate for the Legislature.

THE Lancaster ladies have decided to defer the presentation of the Cantata here until later in the season, we regret to say.

W. K. HOBBS, our worthy blacksmith, does not wish his name confounded with that of the fellow who is adulterating Crab Orchard salts.

SHERIFF MENEFEE's delinquent tax list has been reduced 30 odd names since it appeared in this paper, which proves that advertising pays even a sheriff.

TWO Lincoln county men struck the combination for arrears of pensions last week: Messrs. J. J. McKinney and N. J. Henderson Baugh, of Highland, died Saturday of a disease like croup.

MILTON BURCH, recently appointed postmaster at Georgetown, died Saturday of consumption, aged 35. An effort will be made to have his widow appointed his successor.

COL. BIRRY TAYLOR died at Georgetown Sunday, after a lingering illness. He was a son of the late Col. James Taylor, of Newport, and a brother-in-law of Colonel Thomas L. Jones.

Mrs. Cath Bailey received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harrison Bailey, at her home in Shelby county. Deceased was a most estimable Christian woman, loved by all who knew her and almost idolized by her immediate relatives. She was born in Shelby county and her maiden name was Childs.

MR. ABNER CHENAULT, who was been ill for several weeks of typhoid fever, breathed his last yesterday morning at the home of his brother-in-law, M. G. Thompson, aged about 48 years. He had but recently returned from the West, and purchasing Mr. T. J. Foster's farm, was preparing to spend the days of his declining years in the land of his birth and in the quiet enjoyment of his family, when inexorable death came to rudely tear asunder a happy household. Mr. Chenault was twice married, the last time to Miss Thompson, who, with one child, survived him, and in their hour of terrible bereavement they have the sympathy of every true heart. A member of the Methodist Church, a Christian and a gentle man, Mr. Chenault was highly esteemed and in all of the walks of life demonstrated his worth as a man.

—The death of Hugh L. Porter, which occurred at 10 o'clock Friday night at the home of his father, Robert L. Porter, while not unexpected, was a surprise to his friends who had no idea that the end was so near. A few short years ago, when he came to town to enter business, he was a robust and hearty young man, apparently destined to a long and useful life, but the fell destroyer, consumption, marked him for his own, and claimed him ere he reached his 20th birthday. His strict attention to their interests won for him a high place in the esteem of his employers and his modest and gentlemanly demeanor made him popular with young and old, a fact which was fully demonstrated by the very large concourse of town and country friends which gathered Sunday to follow his body to the tomb. At his home, Elder John Bell Gibson read a chapter and spoke a few words of comfort to weeping relatives and friends and then the remains were taken to the old burying ground, on the late William Logan's farm, and laid away. Eight years ago Hugh gave his heart into the keeping of his Master and joined the Christian Church here. His faith sustained him in his long illness and two weeks since he told his father and mother that he must die; that he had no fears of death, but on the contrary hailed it with a pleasure, tempered only by the thought of a separation from them and the others that he held dear. He exhorted them to live so that the parting would not be eternal, but all the happier, beyond the skies, for their short separation. The loss of a good and dutiful boy is a sad affliction, but the grieving parents can praise God in their sorrow for the sweet consolation that their example and training prepared him for an eternal life of joy at His right hand.

MARRIAGES.

—L. B. Hurt, of Columbia, and Miss Hattie Bosley, of Lebanon, were married on the 23d. Mr. Hurt is a leading citizen and one of the most enterprising merchants of his town and we congratulate him on winning the love of a woman in every way worthy of him.

JUDGE R. H. Gray, of White county, Ark., was putting on his wedding attire, preparatory to being married to Miss Nannie Patty, when he complained of a pain in his right arm, called for water, which he drank, and lying down upon a bed, immediately expired.

DEATHS.

—A five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Baugh, of Highland, died Saturday of a disease like croup.

—Milton Burch, recently appointed postmaster at Georgetown, died Saturday of consumption, aged 35. An effort will be made to have his widow appointed his successor.

Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle County.

A friend wishes to ask if Harris wasn't on the fence during the war?

The day operator from this place went down to the washout Wednesday night and had in an office till the track was clear.

—Pat Welch and Rob Newcomb had a heated discussion a few evenings since and came to blows. Pat received a slight cut in the left cheek from a knife in Rob's hands.

—Charles Caillard's examining trial for killing Brownlow Townsend at Pine Hill a few days since came up before Judge Colyer Saturday and the defendant was held to answer in the sum of $500. The bond not being made he was remanded to jail.

—A small ripple of excitement was created here last Friday evening when some reported that P. T. Barnum was on the South bound train; though it soon subsided when some person said he was on the hunt, for his museum, for a freight conductor who was never known to grumble.

—T. F. Wallace returned from Garrard Thursday. Miss Cleo Williams returned Friday from a pleasant visit to Crab Orchard. Mrs. Angie Poynter is but little better. James Croucher is up from Garrard for a few days visit. Sam' Brown, who has been braking on the main stem since the strike, is at home for a short time.

—Last August a man left a dark bay mare at the stable connected with the Newcomb Hotel under suspicious circumstances. A few days since Sheriff White received a letter from W. S. Mabin, Wilmore, Jessamine county, asking inquiries for such an animal. Thursday that gentleman arrived here with proper proof of his proprietorship and upon paying charges took the mare and left for home.

Your London correspondent is correct when he says a candidate's "fool friends" often cause more damage than good to their standard bearer's cause, by making fool remarks, statements, etc., when it would be best for their cause to keep their mouths closed. For instance, a Madison man some time ago made the remark that he could buy the d—n pauper county for a trifling sum. The county is down in the so called pauper list, but our people are rather sensitive on that point, and don't care to be told of it too often even by their best friends.

The Leader correspondent from this place in his letter to last week's paper (which issue never came to light) made mention of a very pleasant visit to Stanford, a week since. His cordial reception by the INTERIOR JOURNAL force was greatly appreciated. His taking tea with Mr. W. and meeting his estimable wife was a pleasant feature of his trip. He says that he had been under the impression that he was a worker himself, but after seeing the energetic attacks of the L. J. office he came to the conclusion that he was but a loafer when compared with these laborers from Workville on the head waters of Rush creek.

—Charles C. Doyle, after six months' illness from paralysis, died at his home in this place Saturday morning, aged about 50. He was buried Sunday. For many years he had been a prominent railroad construction boss and contractor and had built roads in many States of the Union and as far South as the city of Mexico from whence he returned two years since after an absence of five years. He had many warm personal friends here. For nearly a year he had not been able to utter a word on account of his vocal organs being paralyzed. He was a brother-in-law of Mr. M. J. Miller, of this place.

—One of the smoothest and most pleasant writers we have ever had the pleasure of reading after is M. T. Craft, formerly of the London Leader, and if we mistake not journalism is his forte. Laurel county and the mountains greatly need such a man at the head of a democratic paper. Since disposing of the Leader some time since on account of his health we understand he has improved to a considerable extent and we, with many others of this county, would be glad to have him again in the newspaper business, where he is so eminently fitted to shine as a bright journalistic star.

A half sheet of the Echo was what the Leader subscribers received here Friday in which a short paragraph informed them of the Leader's discontinuance. They are feeling a little sore over their treatment at the hands of the manager of the Leader and say it was but justice and a duty of the editor to have issued a final number with some explanation or statement of the facts as to the cause, if any existed, for his disposition of his and his subscribers interests to an other party, especially one of a different political faith. Something of this kind would have gone a long ways towards mitigating the sad disappointment experienced by a majority of the Leader's patrons in this country.

Recent rains have caused great destruction to property in this county. Wm. Whitaker's mill, near the mouth of Skaggs creek was carried away a few nights since; not even the stones were left. A house occupied by Mrs. E. Price, at Livingston, floated off, carrying most of the family's household effects. The mill men at Livingston loss over a hundred thousand feet of lumber they had stacked on the yard. It is said that two beds of gondola cars that were standing near the mill were lifted from their trucks and washed away. Mr. Sambrook's stable, at Livingston, was flooded and two fine yokes of oxen and some hogs were drowned. A number of mules in the same stable made their escape. Rockcastle River was two feet higher than was ever known.

Written for the INTERIOR JOURNAL.
ONLY A DREAM.

The following lines are supposed to be an answer to a young lady who wrote to her lover:—"Our days have been sweet and blissful; but henceforth we can no more than friends. Think of the past as only a dream."

The words herself hast spoken,
Our bonds of love are given,
Give back each cherished token
That have to the given,
Forget the love pledged fondly,
Vows once our dearest theme;

The past shall be only
A dream, a dream, a dream!

True our lives have been blissful,
All music and sunshine,
Oh! how shall long and wistful
For days like mine and thine.
But they are gone; let's kindly
Wait the morrow's gleam;

The past is only—one
A dream—a dream—a dream!

The world will yet adore thee,
And prize thee for a while,
And perchance bring before me;
Some other eyes to smile;
So be it—but when lonely,

One day thy life shall seem,

Sigh not: "Would it were only

Western Migration.

The movement westward during the coming year promises to be the largest ever known in the history of emigration, and in anticipation of the season's business the Ohio & Mississippi Railway has placed on sale round-trip tickets to a large number of western points at very low rates in order to afford an opportunity to look at the land before purchasing.

A series of excursions will be run during the season conducted by agents of the Company. This line pays special attention to colony or emigration business, having sold daily trains from Cincinnati to St. Louis on all classes of tickets go through without change of cars, giving the holder the best of accommodations.

The Company is constantly adding new features for the comfort of its patrons moving West and it is anticipated that the new line of free cars will be placed in service in time for the spring business.

Information in regard to location and prices of western lands, rates for passenger tickets and freight, time of trains, &c., to all points, may be obtained by calling on or addressing C. W. Paris, Central Passenger Agent, O. & M. RAILWAY, 45 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

That is a Fact.

You can not pick up a copy of a paper without reading the advertisement of a remedy that is advertised to cure all the diseases in the catalogue. But that is as far as the advertisement goes. A remedy should be like a person—if put to trial—it gives recommendation. It is a stranger to you and you want it identified. It may have all the appearance of being good and yet be worthless. The Carbolic Smoke Ball does this. It comes to you and says: "I will cure diseases of the bronchial tubes, throat and lungs," and then it holds it up and proves the statement true by living witness whom you know. The Carbolic Smoke Ball has relieved hundreds in Louisville and is adding to the list every day, and we feel safe in giving it our recommendation, so that people from abroad may know of its qualities.—[Apostolic Guide.]
